National Day for Truth and Reconciliation

September 30th marks the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation. This day honours those who endured the residential school system in Canada, and acknowledges the ongoing generational impact on Indigenous families.

This recognition is an important part of reconciliation efforts.

Why wear Orange?

Orange Shirt Day was started in 2013 by The Orange Shirt Society, an Indigenous-led grassroots organization to commemorate the residential school experience.

"Orange Shirt Day was inspired by the story of a Residential School Survivor named Phyllis Webstad. When Phyllis was six years old she went to an Indian Residential School for the first time wearing a brand new "shiny orange shirt" bought by her Grandmother. When she arrived at the school her shirt was taken away, never to be worn again.

To Phyllis Webstad, the colour orange symbolized that she did not matter. Today, she has learned to accept the colour, and even have fun with it, and now the orange shirt has instead become a symbol of hope and reconciliation."
